

My Farewell

Lyrics by Jonathan Patton

On my knees as I bleed I scream
Take my life before it kills me
Every night I get one breath closer to my farewell
I need a Savior...

The sun goes down again tonight
To end another day, another fight
To keep my head above this never-ending storm
As I'm sinking again I fear this time it's the end

There I see You...

On my knees as I bleed I scream
Take my life before it kills me
Every night I get one breath closer to my farewell
I need a Savior...

I look out the window, watch the rain fall down
The voices in my head they now resound
Could I be forgiven could I be set free
Will You stop this war I can't take anymore

There I see You...

On my knees as I bleed I scream
Take my life before it kills me
Every night I get one breath closer to my farewell
I need a Savior...

Every day I feel the same...
And every time I try to heal I fail...
I close my eyes but I can't sleep
For fear my dreams come to torture me
The past comes creeping to my door
And with one last breath, I hit the floor...

God I need You...
