

Welcome to America

Lyrics by Jonathan Patton

She's lying on the floor
And it's slowly turning red
Not even 17
Thought she'd be better of dead
She was miss America
They told her she was plain
She took a knife to her wrist
And so her misery ends
Well thank God for pop culture and her so called friends

And everybody's waiting for summer
Cause all our hearts are frozen to hollow stone
And everybody's screaming for answers
Is this the liberty we were dying for?

United we stand alone
We are lost we are torn
Where did we go wrong?
When our love became war

United we stand alone
We've fallen so far
Is this the liberty we were dying for?

He's lying in the street
And it glistens from his head
From the wrong side of the world
And just for that he bled
Welcome to America
Here we're all equally the same
Says a damn racist with daddy's guidance and guns
Way to raise your son number one dad
It should have been your blood

And everybody's waiting for summer
Cause all our hearts are frozen to hollow stone
And everybody's screaming for answers
Is this the liberty we were dying for?

United we stand alone
We are lost we are torn
Where did we go wrong?
When our love became war

United we stand alone
We've fallen so far
Is this the liberty we were dying for?

Can you breathe for us?
Can you bleed for us?
Cause if this is why we live
And if this is why we die
Then this will be the last time, the last time
